IJICHI SAYS HE'S GLAD TO GET BACK CAMPBELL REPORTS TAFT FRIENDLY

HARD TO GET JURY

From the manner in which both sides are exercising their pre-emptory challenges, the second special venire of jurors will soon be exhausted and another one be impaneled. Up to noon the prosecution has waived one and used one, while the defense exercised five. Thus only three jurors of the second venire remain. This means further delay in getting a jury and going to trial. Lightfoot even questioned the right of a man to sit on the jury who had been educated at a college partly supported by plantation donations.

Attorney Lightfoot fired some hot questions into Sergeant Barry when court was called at 10 o'clock. It was a continuation of Mr. Barry's examination to qualify or turn him down as a juror in the conspiracy case on before Judge De Bolt. "Have you expressed a desire, Mr. Barry, that orders should be issued so that you would have a chance to

WHAT 'FRISCO PAPERS SAY OF VISITING CORRESPONDENT

Evidently Comes Here to Promote Cause of Agitators and Stir Up Trouble---Reputed by Consul.

Makino and his bunch of thugs again scored this morning when they railroaded Mr. K. Kiyose off the China and hustled him at once to their headquarters, where they will be sure to hold him sound and fast until he leaves here a week hence.

Kiyose is here as the representative of the Asahi Shinbun, the largest and most influential paper in the Empire of Japan, and he is here for the particular purpose of reporting to his paper the strike condition in Hawaii. It is claimed that in nearly all matters connected with affairs in the Empire the ultimate decision and report of the Shinbun influences the government.

If Kiyose permits himself to be led by Makino, and filled with the Makino version of the strike situation, and that version appears in Kiyose's paper, it is hoped by the agitators that international aspects may arise, serious to a degree. Makino was at the wharf with his usual foresight, while other Japanese were banishing for the cruelties that appeared off the harbor at the same time. The vessel was still ten or twelve feet from the dock when Makino singled Kiyose out of the crowd, pointed to the reporters who were waiting at the dock to interview him and made rapid signals to the effect that he must keep a closed mouth.

The minute the gangplank was in position and before the lines were cast off, one of his lieutenants evaded the custom officer at the foot of the plank and rushed on board to instruct Kiyose, or disorient him, as to the purposes of the newspaper men who followed. Makino's crowd surrounded him and started him down at once. One of them said in Japanese, "Don't speak to him," as a reporter approached and in consequence all that could be learned was that he would stay about a week here, and the name of his paper.

The Examiner of June 17 says: K. Kiyose, editorial writer for the Japanese American, 349 Mason street, will sail today for Honolulu on the liner China as a special emissary from merchants and other representative Japanese of San Francisco, Oakland and Berkeley to investigate and report on the present agitation and labor troubles at Hawaii.

NIPPON'S SHIPS BACK IN PORT

Ijichi's Cruisers Will Remain Here A Week and Officers and Men Will Again Be Entertained --- Crowds Watch Warriors Come In

"I have had grand receptions all through the United States, but am glad to get back to Hawaii once more." Admiral Ijichi, commander-in-chief of His Imperial Japanese Majesty's training squadron, made the above statement as he greeted the Bulletin representative in his cabin, on board his flagship this morning. The Admiral was evidently in a happy mood as he acknowledged the salute of the sailors.

Among the first to greet the Admiral off port, besides Consul General Uyeno, were Secretary Ito of the Consulate, Lieutenant Commander Moses, Mr. Onodera of the Japanese Daily Chronicle, and Mr. Tokieda, manager of the Yokohama Specie Bank, chairman of the Japanese reception committee.

Change Flag. After he had changed his flag from the Aso to the Soya, his former flagship, off port, Admiral Ijichi, standing on the bridge, surrounded by his staff and Captain Sato, proceeded to enter the harbor under the pilotage of Captain McCauley. The flagship was followed by the Aso.

Salute. Before docking, the flagship saluted the American flag with twenty-one guns. This was responded to by the naval battery.

A company of United States marines, with the Hawaiian band, saluted the Admiral, as he stood on the bridge from where he returned the salute. The Japanese band also played the "The Spangled Banner."

Captain Rees Calls. Captain Corwin P. Rees, commandant of the Naval Station, accompanied by Lieutenant Commander Moses, drove down to the dock and called on the Admiral. This done, Admiral Ijichi, accompanied by Consul General Uyeno, Captain Ishii and Sato, and Flag Lieutenant Shimomura, returned the call at the Naval Station.

Anxious Japanese. Long before Admiral Ijichi's ships entered the harbor and docked at the naval dock, the Honolulu Japanese colony, including the merchants, clerks, storekeepers, newspapermen, and the strikers, grouped around the Naval Station and watched the incoming warships.

Voyage Pleasant. The trip down from Seattle, according to the officers, was pleasant. There was no mishaps of any kind, and the officers and men are glad to be in Honolulu once more.

Won Contests. Besides visiting various ports along the Pacific Coast of the United States, as guests of the United States government, the midshipmen and crews of the Imperial warships, took part in tug-of-war contests, boat races and
